ORDER YOUR THANKSGIVING TURKEY TODAY!

For the third year, the Russian River Chapter of Slow Food will be selling Heritage Turkeys for the Holiday Season to raise funds to promote local youth-in-agriculture and the preservation of the American Heritage Turkey and other heritage foods. Young farmers who participate in Sonoma County's 4H and FFA programs are raising this year's turkeys. Between them they are raising a total of nearly 200 birds.

These birds are a part of American history and are in need of being reintroduced onto holiday tables. But most importantly, they are delicious: their meat is tender, succulent, and extremely flavorful – in the words of Marion Burros of The New York Times, they are “the essence of turkey”.
